THEY CRUSH THE POWERS

This is written in mid-October. The long, oppressive summer is quite gone. Fading leaf, withering tree and the rustling corn in the fields are signs of the season. Fog, frost, rain, snow,—they are coming. You remember last winter; of 1900 and 1901. The weather was cruel. Ah! the thousands it killed, and the hundreds of thousands it maimed and crippled. Oh, the rough grasp it laid on men at work, women at home, and children in cribs and cradles. Coughs that began before Thanksgiving Day are racking and tearing them still; yes, and growing worse as they dig deeper into the poor, tired throat and lungs. Many were cured by using Benson's Porous Plasters. For the soothing and healing power of these Plasters is wonderful. They conquer the complaints

THAT ARE KILLING THE PEOPLE.

No other plaster, no other medicine or application, can compare with them. Coughs, colds, backache, rheumatism, lumbago, kidney and liver troubles, asthma, influenza,—they all go down before Benson's Plasters like a snow image in the sun. You can't throw money away on a Benson's Plaster. Everybody is going to use them this season. But make certain you get the genuine. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

Man Proposes

A Dialogue.

BY EDWIN PUGH.

"She is absolutely perfect," said young Stafford Orcot.

"She mostly always is," said Jim. "It's quite the commonest type of she."

"Mind you, I'm not one to rave," Stafford went on. "Some lovers do, I know, but I flatter myself I'm not that kind of man at all."

"Yes, you flatter yourself," muttered Jim.

"Eh? Oh, I only wish you knew her!"

"I know hundreds of her."

"She's not like other girls."

"Of course she isn't."

"In the first place, as I have told you, she is perfect."

"And in addition to that?"

"Oh, you wouldn't understand. Jim, if she refuses me, I shall die!"

"Otherwise I suppose you have determined to be immortal."

"Jim, advise me. You're a man of the world."

"That is why I shall do nothing of the kind."

"I wish you would. I assure you I'd be only too pleased to take your advice if"—

"If I advised you to do as you think best. And what would be the use of that? It would be like spurring a bolting horse."

"Look here!" said Stafford, with an air of inspiration. "I've a jolly good mind to speak to her point blank and be done with it. I can't go on like this. It's making an old man of me. And at the worst she can only condemn me to a lifetime of misery."

"And what is a lifetime of misery, after all?" asked Jim. "You can easily compress it into a few weeks. Look at me, for instance."

"You?" Stafford looked slightly incredulous.

"When I was a mere boy—ah, it must be some six months ago now," said Jim solemnly, "I, too, was in love. But she told me she would always be my friend, and she hoped that I should find some one more worthy of me." He shook his head mournfully. "Well," he continued, "to cut a long story short, she was a better friend to me when she said that than she ever expected to be. And as for the 'some one more worthy,' their name is legion, but none of 'em are worthy enough."

"I hate that kind of cheap talk, Jim," said Stafford impatiently.

"So do I," Jim replied. "But they all say it. It's their way of letting you down lightly."

Stafford looked at him reproachfully. Jim rose and clapped him on the shoulder.

"My dear old chap," he said, "the world isn't going to stop laughing because a girl has curly hair and a man takes himself seriously about it. If you marry this girl, and equally if you don't, you'll soon learn to laugh again yourself. You'll have to—we all have to, to keep our hearts from breaking. I am not one of those who would see love slaughtered to make an 'Ally Sloper's Half Holiday,' but all the same I am not going to encourage you in the belief that you are not more than slightly ridiculous. Here is a girl good and charming and all that, I've no doubt, and here are you, such as you are, pretty ordinary and right. You love the girl and want to marry her. Well, tell her so. Take my word for it, she is very ready to be told."

"Jim, old man," said Stafford, smiling wanly, "I feel that I can't talk to you any more about this. It's too sacred. And you're so unsympathetic. You mean well, but you don't understand. It isn't as if she were one of your frivolous society girls."

"They are quite as much yours as mine," protested Jim.

"She is an angel," said Stafford, with conviction.

"Not yet."

"I could die for her."

"Why waste a charming widow?"

"I know you think I'm being a bit extravagant," said Stafford, "but really and soberly I do believe there is something divine about that girl."

"It's her expression," said Jim gravely.

"How did you know that?" cried Stafford.

"It's either that or the way she sings."

"Yes," Stafford responded eagerly, "she does sing, you know, only privately, of course."

"Not much, but often," Jim suggested.

It was the last straw. Stafford picked up his hat.

"I believe you are turning into a profound cynic, Jim," he said, "and I'm sorry to see it."

"A cynic is never profound," retorted Jim. "All the same, I wish you the best of luck."

"She will never accept me."

"Even if she does I shan't despair," said Jim, grinning. "By the way, what is her name?"

"Her name?" stammered Stafford.

"For purposes of reference and identification, you know," said Jim. "she must have a name, however unworthy."

Stafford whispered in his ear and rushed from the room. Jim stood motionless before the fireplace.

"The same girl!" he said, with a sigh. "Poor old Stafford!" And he filled his pipe.

But she accepted Stafford.

"Of course she is six months older now," Jim reminded himself. "And a woman grows more inclined to accept something less than perfection as the months roll by. It makes a difference."

"And now you're the happiest man in the world?" he said when Stafford imparted the great news to him a day or two later.

"I suppose so," said Stafford, adding hastily, "Of course I am."

Jim appraised him with a keen glance.

"Her parents," Stafford proceeded rather inconsequently, "are all in favor of an early marriage."

"Lucky man!"

"And of course," said Stafford, "there is no doubt, as her father says, that the sooner we get it over the better."

"Sort of cold bath business," thought Jim.

"I say, old man," Stafford blurted out at last, "of course I'm awfully happy and all that, and she is quite the dearest little girl in the world, but has it ever struck you that marriage is a little rough on the man?"

Jim rose up in his wrath.

"Stafford," said he, pointing the finger of scorn at his friend, "she is absolutely perfect, remember. You said so yourself."

Stafford shuffled. "I said she was as perfect as a woman could be."

"'Absolutely perfect' were the words you used."

"That's not evidence. I swear it. I had myself perfectly well in hand. And I particularly said at the time I didn't want to be extravagant."

"And you said also that you would surely die if she refused you."

Stafford tried to laugh. "Never knew you read novelettes before, Jim."

"Moreover, you insisted on it that she was an angel."

"You have mixed me up with some other man."

"You were certainly not yourself at the time. I could almost wish now that you had been."

"Take your time. Say some more," Stafford drawled.

"I've nearly done," said Jim. "You finally accused me of being a cynic because I ventured to suggest she was more or less human."

"Were you so wise when you were in love?" Stafford asked.

"No," answered Jim, "but the woman was. She declined to come down from her pedestal."—Black and White.

The Proper Way to Introduce People.

In making an introduction the man is always taken to the lady to be presented, and the formula is, "Miss A., may I present Mr. B.?" Where two women or two men are presented the elder is addressed where the difference is marked. A girl presents her friends to her mother, but the mother says, "Allow me to present my daughter, Mrs. Blank." A woman should rise when another woman is presented to her unless she is much younger than herself. If a man is presented, she retains her seat and bows and smiles cordially. Men always shake hands when introduced to each other. Women do so when desiring to show especial friendliness.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Lake of Ink.

Men of science tell of the existence in Mexico of a "lake of ink." The body of water or ink or whatever it is so covered with the ashes from the adjacent volcanoes as to appear a part of the surrounding ground, which is all of the same dull tint. At first the party of pioneers who discovered the lake inclined to the theory that it was but a mere hole, but the condition of the clothes of one of the party who fell into it quickly disproved this, for the dirt left an indelible stain. It was called ink forthwith, and, as it blended readily with alcohol, one of the draftsmen of the party took the occasion to supply himself with a good cheap quality of drawing ink.

Care in Drying Linen.

In these days of factory made linens it is especially essential that the goods should be carefully laundered. The fiber of linen is easily cracked when it is in a frozen state, and for this reason it is much wiser to dry it in the house during the cold weather. Old fashioned linen such as our great-grandmothers wove could be easily hung outdoors in winter and allowed to bleach in the frost as well as in the dew, but when the fiber has been weakened by the use of bleachers it is impossible that it should wear like the old time linens.

A LESSON IN A BULB.

It Changed the Current of a Despondent Child's Life.

"If I have been able to accomplish anything in my life," said a woman famous as one of the most kindly and lovable among leaders of the best American society, "it is due to the word spoken to me in the right season when I was a child by my old teacher. I was the only homely, awkward one in a class of exceptionally beautiful girls, and, being also dull at my books, I became the derision of the school. I fell into a morose, despairing state, gave up study, withdrew into myself and grew daily more bitter and vindictive. One day the French teacher, a gray haired old woman with keen eyes and a bright smile, found me crying. 'Qu as-tu, ma fille?' she asked. 'Oh, madam, I am so ugly!' I sobbed out.

"She soothed me, but did not contradict me. Presently she took me into her room and said, 'I have a present for you,' handing me a scaly, coarse lump covered with earth. 'It is round and brown as you. Ugly, did you say? Very well. We will call it by your name, then. It is you. Now, you shall plant it and water it and give it sun for a week or two.' I planted it and watched it carefully. Green leaves came out first and at length a golden Japanese lily, the first I had ever seen. Madam came to share my delight. 'Ah,' she said significantly, 'who would believe so much beauty and fragrance were shut up in that ugly thing? But it took heart and grew into the sunlight.'

"It was the first time it ever occurred to me that in spite of my ugly face I, too, might be able to win friends and make myself beloved."—Chicago Chronicle.

When to See an Oculist.

Should any of the following symptoms be experienced an oculist of repute should be consulted: Spots or sparks of light floating before the eyes, quivering of the lids or sensation of sand in the eye, perceptible fatigue or the requirement of strong light in reading, the holding of objects at arm's length or close to the eye, squinting one eye or seeing objects double, dizziness or darting pains in the eyeballs or over the temple, perceiving a colored circle around the lamp, sensitiveness of the eyeballs or contraction of the visual field, blurring of the vision or being unable to see objects distinctly at a distance, watering or redness of the eyes or lids, running together of the letters when reading or seeing the vertical better than the horizontal lines.

Arctic Belles.

Some of the most costly dresses worn by women are those which are owned by the belles of the arctic regions. In those lands of ice the women dress themselves by the light of the aurora borealis in costumes more valuable than those worn by the richest women in New York or Paris. Frequently the wardrobe of a semisavage girl consists of furs that would sell for $10,000 in the haunts of civilization. It is no uncommon thing for a woman of the arctic circle to wear a dress of sealskin with a hood of that rarest of fur the silver fox. The average value of a dress worn by a woman on the headwaters of the Columbia and Fraser rivers is said to be $700, it being composed entirely of valuable skins.

Stomachs on Stilts.

The man who puts on stilts does not increase his actual stature by the breadth of a hair. He feels taller while he's on the stilts, and when he's off 'em he feels shorter than he ever felt. Stimulants are the stilts of the stomach. They make a man feel better for the time being, but he feels a great deal worse for them afterward.

The need of the man whose stomach is "weak" is not stimulation but strength. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery perfectly answers that need. It cures the diseases of the digestive and nutritive system which make the stomach "weak." It enables the digestion and assimilation of food, so that the body receives the nutrition on which depends its strength.

"I took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for stomach trouble," writes Clarence Carnes, Esq., Taylorstown, Loudoun Co., Va. "It did me so much good that I didn't take any more. I can eat most anything now. I am so well pleased with it I hardly know how to thank you for your kind information. I tried a whole lot of things before I wrote to you. A gentleman told me of your medicine, and how it cured his wife. Thought I would try a bottle of it. Am now glad that I did, for I do not know what I should have done had it not been for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; You lose. Therefore accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

The sluggish liver is made active by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic Asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the first of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After taking one bottle her Asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease.
Yours respectfully, O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO. February 5, 1901.

A DESPISED SPECIES.

In our journey through life we meet many people. Rich and poor, big and little, brilliant and dull jostle each other at every corner. Life is an endless chain of antithesis. A man rich in this world's goods may be small in statue; a man big in statue may be dull of comprehension; a man brilliant in knowledge may be both poor and little. So has the Creator ordered things. It is no man's fault that he is not both rich and big and brilliant, nor is it his fault that he is not poor and little and dull. Such a scheme of endowment lies beyond the ken of human kind, nevertheless we have a certain control over ourselves and our future. Having been gifted with a free will it is for us to say what part we will play on the stage of life. The man who refuses to say and permits others to say for him is the most despised of all human beings. Among these are the species contemptuously designated as "stool pigeons." Such refuse to take the gift that God provides them and so sacrifice the one spark of divinity in their nature. Having yielded their freedom of will, they are but the creatures of dust and ashes and as such are blown to the four winds. A man who thinks so little of himself as to become the mouthpiece of cowards and knaves can hope for nothing better than to be buffeted mercilessly about. He is more than a slave to his master for he whose mind is shackled is servile indeed. Like the manikins in the show he acts and speaks only what those behind the scenes manipulate. If the speeches and acts are a failure, the manipulators remain safely ensconsed in the background while the poor manikins are pelted by a merciless crowd. If the manikins are applauded, the manipulators come out and make their bows and take all the credit. So it is in life with the stool pigeon and his master. The coward's accomplice is a nonentity. Such are not even elbowing their way through life. They are being booted along to an inevitable end. When you meet them on the journey through life and notice their placards remember that unlike the poor, the dull and the little, this class wears a ball and chain self hung.

The following answer is given in last Tuesday's Call to an inquiry from El Verano in regard to the homestead law: "Under the laws of California the wife can make a selection of a homestead out of the community property if the husband does not do so, and it says: 'The declaration of homestead when it is made by the wife must show that the husband had not made such declaration and that she makes it for their joint benefit.' On the death of the husband one-half of the community property, including the homestead, goes to the surviving wife. The other half is subject to the testamentary disposition of the husband, and in the absence of such it goes to the descendants equally if such descendants are in the same degree of kindred to the deceased, otherwise according to the right of representation."

The Economy of the Egyptians.

A curious illustration of the domestic economy of the Egyptians has been met with in the unwinding of the bandages of the mummies. Although whole webs of fine cloth have been most frequently used, in other cases the bandages are fragmentary and have seams, darns and patches. Old napkins are used, old skirts, pieces of something that may have been a shirt, and once a piece of cloth was found with an armhole in it, with seam and gusset and band finely stitched by fingers themselves long since crumbled and their dust blown to the four winds.

Railways Without a Curve.

There is a railway over the Egyptian desert which runs for forty-five miles in a straight line, but this is easily beaten in Australia. The railway from Nyngan to Bourke, in New South Wales, runs over a plain which is as level as a billiard table for 126 miles in a mathematically straight line. There is hardly an embankment, nowhere a curve and only three very slight elevations.

The efforts of the Southern Pacific Railway Company to attract and bring settlers to California should be realized and appreciated by all interested in the future of our Golden State. The company is doing more now to attract attention to this section of the country than ever before. California is being liberally and handsomely advertised by the Southern Pacific throughout the East and having created an interest in our magnificent resources the company is now offering colonists extremely low transportation rates so that they may come here and settle. These rates are certainly a great inducement to the people of less favored sections of the country to locate in this State. They will bring home-seekers here and give them an opportunity to look into our matchless resources and great possibilities.

The benefits to be derived from efforts of this kind are far-reaching and Californians should not be slow to appreciate the good work that is being done by the railroad people. It matters not what matchless climate a country may have, what beautiful scenery, what luscious fruits, what golden grain—these all go for naught unless such advantages and resources are known to the world and opportunity given to enjoy and utilize them.

The Southern Pacific is utilitarian in all its aims. It is doing the most practical, systematic and attractive advertising ever devised to settle a State. It has a two-fold benefit. In the first place it makes it possible for Easterners to acquaint themselves with California and in the second place it makes it possible for Californians to attract new capital and add to the population. Call the attention of your Eastern friends to the new colonist rates of the Southern Pacific.

Would Try the Old Masters.

A reputation for wit is like a rolling snowball—it gathers from without more than it develops from within. He who possesses the reputation for witty stories shall have witty stories added to him, so to speak. Just so with the great national type, the American parvenu. There is a charming woman in Washington who betrays her beginnings sometimes, so all the malapropisms current are told of her.

And here is another. It is probably quite as true as some of the others. An acquaintance met the lady on the deck of an outgoing steamer. Two of her daughters were with her.

"What, off for Europe again? What is the errand this time?"

"I'm going to have the dear girls' portraits painted."

"Why not in America?"

"Oh, I've tried all the American artists in vain. Now we're going over to see what the old masters can do."

Getting Thin

is all right, if you are too fat; and all wrong, if too thin already.

Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat; consult a doctor; too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: over-work and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can; but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however; you'll pay for it

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work--you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

UNCROWNED QUEENS.

Seven of Them Have Sat Upon the Throne of England.

English history shows that there were several queens of England—just seven of them, in fact—who were never crowned.

Margaret of France, the young second wife of Edward I., was obliged to forego all the splendors of such a pageant because her royal husband, forsooth, could not afford the expense of a coronation.

King Henry VIII. took most of his wives without giving them the ceremony of a coronation. But in his case there were so many of them that his course might have been deemed a wise economy. Besides, he spent so much the once he did go in for a queen's coronation, that of Anne Boleyn, that it is small wonder the money fell short for the ladies who succeeded her, Jane Seymour, Anne of Cleves, Catherine Howard and Catherine Parr.

Henrietta Maria, the young and pretty wife of Charles I., went without a coronation not from necessity, but from choice. Being a French princess and a Roman Catholic, she declined to take part in a state function which would oblige her to partake of the sacrament according to the Church of England rites.

Caroline of Brunswick was denied the pleasure of a coronation not for financial reasons nor for religious principles, but because her spouse, George IV., particularly specified that he wouldn't have her share in his honor. When he was crowned, he would not even permit her to be present at Westminster abbey to see the ceremony. When she tried to get in, she was repulsed and turned away from all of the entrances. She went home to die three weeks later of a violent fever, induced by the excitement.

"FAINTED AND FELL UPON A HOT STOVE."

Under that headline the morning papers recently told the story of an unfortunate woman who was badly burned. She was subject to fainting fits, and had often fallen to the floor unconscious. But this time she happened to be at work in the kitchen, and was in the very act of placing a dish upon the cookstove when she fainted and fell forward, badly burning herself before help arrived.

The person who is subject to fainting fits is not only in a miserable but a dangerous condition. There is always the possibility of being overtaken by the malady under circumstances which may result in a catastrophy similar to that of the woman who fell upon the stove. There are a great many women who are subject to fainting "spells," and there is not one of them who would not be grateful for a means of cure.

MEN DON'T FAINT.

As a rule men do not faint. Starting with that proposition it suggests at once that the frequency of fainting among women must be to a great degree a matter of sex. If we follow this clue a step farther we shall find that in general women who faint are afflicted with womanly diseases and when these diseases are cured there are no more fainting "spells."

"I feel it my duty to write to you and let you know how much your medicine has done for me," writes Mrs. Wm. Hackett, of Breesport, Chemung Co., N. Y. "It is one of the best that I ever used in my life. Before I began to use your medicine it seemed as though I would never be well again. Could not walk to my neighbors, could not stand on my feet five minutes without fainting. Would have a vomiting spell that would last three hours at a time. My limbs would tremble so I could not even wait on myself. Then I had a severe time with chronic inflammation of the liver, then uterine trouble, then heart disease. I had five of the best physicians that could be found. They said to my friends, 'there is no help for her.' One said I could not live the winter out, one told me that if I got temporary relief that was all that could be done. My mother said to me one day when she was there, 'Do you know you cannot get well?' I told her I did. She said, 'What are you going to do about the baby? Do you want me to care for her—or some one else?' It seemed as though she had pierced me with a sword, to think of leaving my little girl without a mother, it seemed as though I could not stand it, and when my friends were telegraphed to that I was dying, and seeing them weep by my bed, that seemed as though I could never stand to hear them repeat that they would 'take care of the baby and give her a good home.' I think if ever any one has been through with such a terrible thing they can sympathize with me.

"While taking the first two bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' I seemed to be getting worse. The next two made me feel so well that I could do my work and be real jolly. With the next two I felt like a new being. I have packed and moved twenty miles, and papered three large rooms and a bedroom alone, besides doing my work. I have worked in my garden and picked up about four bushels of chestnuts this fall. I do hope that everyone who is suffering will try Dr. Pierce's medicines. Do not be discouraged if the first you take makes you feel worse but keep right on and you will be surprised at the result."

THE WAY TO BE WELL.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. When the womanly health is established, fainting, headache, dizziness, and all the other maladies which have their cause in womanly weakness and disease, are entirely cured.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is essentially and particularly a woman's medicine. It has perfectly and permanently cured the most complicated womanly diseases when all other means and medicines had failed to give more than temporary relief.

"I suffered intense agony at times both in mind and body for about twenty years," writes Mrs. M. A. Farrington, of Milford, Pr. Edward Co., Ont. (box 21). "My suffering was caused by uterine trouble. I had doctored a great deal but they did not tell me my trouble until I got so bad from dizziness that I could scarcely walk across the floor. Then I went under treatment but it only gave me temporary relief; tried a support for a while, but gave it up because it did not do me much good. Had female weakness, retroversion, inflammation, ulceration, displacement, with great nervous debility and terrible headaches until it seemed as though I would go out of my mind. Had weak spells with some ovarian trouble, in fact more misery than I can express. I thank God that he has directed me to take Dr. Pierce's medicine and I firmly believe it the best medicine made for all such troubles. Can recommend it to all who suffer as I did. I took six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' one of Sage's Catarrh Remedy, also used one dollar's worth of special tablets, and took also Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I have worked harder since taking his medicine than in ten years before. Have been moving and have done all my own work before and after, which I know was due to his medicine."

WOMANS' OPPORTUNITY.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free, and so avoid the offensive examinations, indelicate questions and obnoxious local treatments which the home physician often deems necessary. Schley and Santiago

BY GEORGE EDWARD GRAHAM.

The intrepid Associated Press war correspondent, who was aboard the U. S. S. Brooklyn during the entire five months of the campaign. Illustrated with photographs taken by the Author during the fight.

The Most Sensational Book of the Day.

The true story of the famous cruise of the Flying Squadron under Commodore Winfield Scott Schley, including the blockade and destruction of the Spanish fleet, TOLD FOR THE FIRST TIME.

Contains an autograph endorsement and personal account of the battle by Rear-Admiral Schley.

"The facts of the story of the movements and operations of the Flying Squadron as the author tells them in this book are correct."
—W. S. SCHLEY.

An interesting narrative of facts. Explains the so-called "Retrograde Movement;" the "Loop;" the "Coaling Problem," and settles conclusively every adverse ruling of the Court of Inquiry.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, when Governor of New York, said:—"Mr. Graham's story is the best account I have heard or read of the naval fighting during the war. It needed just as much courage to go about taking photographs as it did to work the guns."

THE NEW YORK HERALD says:—"Mr. Graham, in the telling of facts, leaves the reader free to make the deduction that several naval officers need a Court of Inquiry to re-establish their reputations, if they can be re-established."

No subject has ever been before the public that has interested everybody as the manner in which Admiral Schley has been treated, and the American people demand the full recognition of the Hero of Santiago. This book tells everything just as it occurred and as the eyewitnesses saw it. Book is selling like wildfire. Liberal commissions. Outfit and books now ready. Send seven 2-cent stamps for canvassing outfit. ACT QUICK. Now is the time to MAKE MONEY.

Price $1.50, $1.75, $2.25, $2.75, according to style of binding desired.

A TERRIFIC WIND STORM

Trees, Barns and Fences Go Down Before the Gale.

A terrific wind storm struck this valley Saturday evening and for six hours it blew a perfect hurricane. Trees were uprooted and prostrated, barns collapsed and fencing went down before the gale.

At six o'clock in the evening the sky became overcast with a peculiar amber tint, which extended from horizon to horizon, a premonition that something unusual was brewing among the elements. This was accompanied by heavy showers of rain and fitful gusts of wind. At seven o'clock the storm developed into one of the fiercest that has ever visited this valley.

A large pine tree in front of the residence of Skelton Glaister was literally twisted up by the roots by the force of the wind and hurled to the ground, blockading Broadway and grounding the wires of the electric light company. This tree, which was over 100 feet in length, went down early in the evening, and the greater part of the town was in darkness throughout the night.

Eighteen or twenty shade and fruit trees on W. S. Miller's farm were prostrated and a large tree fell across Napa street, blockading that thoroughfare.

A big barn on the Burges place, about forty feet square, was blown down and wrecked. The barn was empty and for that reason the loss was confined to the wrecking of the building only.

Fencing all over the valley was leveled and hundreds of trees prostrated. The loss, however, will not be a serious one to any one person, but in the aggregate will foot up considerable.

MISS GAUTIER NARROWLY ESCAPES DROWNING.

Horse Plunges off Bridge Near Santa Rosa.

Miss Leonora Gautier, who was a teacher in the Flowery District school several years ago, had a narrow escape from drowning near Santa Rosa during the recent big storm. Accompanied by a lady friend Miss Gautier was driving into Santa Rosa on Monday evening of last week. When near Victor Piezzi's ranch they attempted to cross a bridge which spanned a creek which the rains had converted into a raging torrent. The horse became frightened at the roaring of the stream and plunged off the bridge into the swift waters below. The buggy landed in the creek in an upright position with its occupants clinging to the seat. Miss Gautier's lady companion then jumped but fortunately was borne by the current against a fence, a board of which she grasped and pulled herself out of the water. The horse, still attached to the buggy in which Miss Gautier was clinging with all her strength, was borne down the stream several hundred feet when the buggy collided with a quaniity of drift wood and was overturned. Miss Gautier was thrown into the water and after floating down stream a few yards saved her life by grasping the branch of a tree which overhung the banks of the creek. To this branch she clung for half an hour before she was rescued.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

All the trout streams in the valley, owing to the heavy rains of last month, promise excellent sport to fishermen when the season opens April 1st, unless some of the lawbreakers of our town clean the streams out before that time. These parties have been known to catch trout in the creeks in this vicinity under cover of darkness, and have been guilty of the practice right along. If Constable Ohm can succeed in catching and convicting a few of these violators of the law it will prove a wholesome lesson to the malefactors and ensure good fishing for our law-abiding sportsmen during the open season for trout.

The little girl of Mr. and Mrs. D. Volquardsen, who has been dangerously ill with pneumonia, has been pronounced out of danger by the attending physician, Dr. G. D. Rich. The recovery of the child has caused great rejoicing in the Volquardsen home, as last week its life was all but despaired of.

Miss Dora V. Howe was called to San Francisco Tuesday by the sudden death of Miss Emma Fisher, a very dear friend. Chas. Ohm, whose smiling countenance we missed for many weeks on account of illness, could not restrain his intrepid and inventive spirit during the flood. Foreman Joe Keechler of the Jones ranch and Fred. Fouts of Sonoma risked their lives during the recent big freshet to save the horses and cattle on the ranch, which was converted into a lake from five to seven feet in depth. Divesting themselves of all superfluous clothing they mounted their horses and plunged into the water and made their way for over a mile toward the stock, numbering several hundred head. The cattle stood in water almost over their backs and the intrepid riders had to swim their horses to reach them and drive them to the high lands on the Fair ranch. In this way all the stock on the ranch was saved with the exception of a few head of sheep, which were drowned before the daring horsemen could reach them. To those acquainted with the dangerous sloughs and pitfalls of an overflowed reclaimed tule ranch the exploit of Messrs. Keechler and Fouts was something extraordinary.

A Printer Greatly Surprised.

"Never was so much surprised in my life as I was with the results of using Chamberlain's Pain Balm," says Henry T. Crook, pressman of the Ashville (N. C.) Gazette "I contracted a severe case of rheumatism early last winter by getting my feet wet. I tried several things for it without benefit. One day while looking over the Gazette, I noticed that Pain Balm was positively guaranteed to cure rheumatism, so bought a bottle of it and before using two thirds of it my rheumatism had taken its flight and I have not had a rheumatic pain since." HOUSEWORK

Too much housework wrecks women's nerves. And the constant care of children, day and night, is often too trying for even a strong woman. A haggard face tells the story of the overworked housewife and mother. Deranged menses, leucorrhœa and falling of the womb result from overwork. Every housewife needs a remedy to regulate her menses and to keep her sensitive female organs in perfect condition.

WINE OF CARDUI

is doing this for thousands of American women to-day. It cured Mrs. Jones and that is why she writes this frank letter:

Glendeane, Ky., Feb. 10, 1901.
I am so glad that your Wine of Cardui is helping me. I am feeling better than I have felt for years. I am doing my own work without any help, and I washed last week and was not one bit tired. That shows that the Wine is doing me good. I am getting fleshier than I ever was before, and sleep good and eat hearty. Before I began taking Wine of Cardui, I used to have to lay down five or six times every day, but now I do not think of lying down through the day. MRS. RICHARD JONES.

FEMININE INTUITION.

Incident That Emphasized Woman's Traditional Attribute.

The intuition of woman is proverbial. Whatever man is willing or unwilling to accord to her, he must admit that her intuitive faculty is amazingly acute. It may not always be evident in the selection of husband and helpmeet, but it generally is in the smaller affairs of life, as witness this:

Two passengers on an Amsterdam avenue car who attracted most attention the other day were a woman and a man. She was exquisitely dressed. He was old and shabby, and he was inadequately clad. The woman regarded him intently for some time, but he kept his eyes on the floor. When the old man got up and started out of the car without hesitation the woman drew something from her purse and, touching the old man's arm, put the coin into his hand as he turned.

Now, there was not one man in that car who did not feel the woman had made a mistake. There was such an air of respectability about the old man it would not have seemed unnatural in him to reject, even resent, the proffered money. But the well dressed woman knew what she was about. The old man took the coin, bowed his thanks and alighted. But the incident did not end here. When it came time for her to leave the car, every man on the back platform raised his hat to her as she swept by.—New York Post.

Ropes of Human Hair.

The young fellows who make their living by gathering the eggs of sea fowl on the rocky island of St. Kilda, one of the Hebrides, consider themselves rich if they are possessed of a rope made of hair from the head of the girl they love. They use these ropes in swinging from the precipitous cliffs of the island. They vary in length, one of forty or fifty feet being especially prized. The usual kind is a stout hempen cord, wrapped round and round with sheep's wool. Over this is a coating of horsehair and finally one of human hair. To manufacture such a rope is the work of years, but the St. Kilda girl saves her combings religiously. A curio collector who wanted to buy one of these ropes offered $125 for it, but the offer was refused. The cord in question was covered with a veneer of red hair the result of thirty years' collection from the heads of parents, aunts and cousins.

A Cough Remedy.

For an irritating throat cold and rasping cough an old fashioned home remedy that has received the indorsement of more than one physician is worth noting. Pour half a pint of hot water over a quarter of a pound of the best gum arabic; cover and let stand until the gum is dissolved, then add a quarter of a pound of pure white sugar and a full half gill of strained lemon juice. Simmer the mixture over the fire about ten minutes before bottling and sealing with a tight cork. This sirup may be taken by the teaspoonful, diluted with a little water, at frequent intervals.

Stuck to His Prisoner.

"There was an Irishman of the Thirty-sixth Indiana who while on the skirmish line at Dallas saw a good chance to capture a Confederate," said an old veteran. "He availed himself of the opportunity, captured his man and was passing to the rear with his prisoner when one of the boys called out to him: 'Pat, let me have that man. I will take him over to General Gross, our brigade commander.'

"'Never mind, me boy,' replied Pat. 'I left a million back over the hill there. Go yourself and fetch one of the lads over and take him to General Gross.'"

A Wrong Diagnosis.

A song with the title "There's a Sigh In the Heart" was sent by a young man to a young lady. But somehow or other the paper happened to fall into the hands of the girl's father, a very unsentimental physician, who exclaimed somewhat crossly:

"What unscientific rubbish is this? Who ever heard of such a case? The man who wrote it must be insane."

He wrote on the outside: "Mistaken diagnosis; no sigh in the heart possible. Sighs relate almost entirely to the lungs and diaphragm."

Her Subterfuge.

"Mary Ann asked me for a reference."

"Did you give her one?"

"Yes, I did. I didn't want her to go away mad."

"What could you say?"

"Why, I said everything that's nice about her."

"How could you? You said she was dreadfully incompetent."

"Well, I called her Belinda all the way through it, and whoever reads it will think she must have stolen it from some other girl."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ANY HEAD NOISES?

ALL CASES OF

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours, F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

Our treatment does not interfere with your usual occupation.
